Cloves

ORIGIN Indonesia

Clove (Eugenia Caryophyllus) is a plantation crop that can reach heights of up to 20 meters. Young leaves are bright pink, then turn yellowish green when old, and become hard. What is taken from the clove plant is the flower, and clove flowers in groups of three to ten stalks, where each stalk contains three flowers. Sumatran cloves are famous for their distinctive fragrance, which is have the stronger aroma and spicier. This can be happened because of the nature, the land in Sumatra contains sandy oil.
